Not illustrated. 1888 Excerpt: . I won t toss more than once, mind. Do you agree to that? Captain Swillington, by way of reply, flicked a sovereign up into the air, caught it upon his knee, and clapped his hand down over it; whereupon Tom called Heads! Tails! responded the other, examining the coin very rapidly and putting it back into his pocket. There was nothing further to be said. A more barefaced swindle was never perpetrated; but it not unfrequently happens that those who are the victims of a swindle must grin and bear it. Tom left the room and the house without a word, called a passing hansom, and was driven back to his lodgings in the garish light of day, turning up the collar of his overcoat to hide his white tie, ashamed of his unshaven face and swollen eyelids. When he reached his bedroom he threw...
