There he is given a bath and put to bed and the regular course of treatment begins. A member of the attending staff of physicians and a senior and junior interne are detailed to the care of each patient immediately on the latter s entrance. To insure prompt attention a system has been established for notifying, by mail and telephone, doctors of the attending staff, of the cases to which they have been assigned, and each physician is required to sign a record, kept in the Warden s office, as an acknowledgment that he has been duly notified and has taken charge of the case. the chemical and microscopic examinations pertaining to clinical diagnosis. Each junior resident physician spends the greater part of every forenoon in the laboratory in routine examination of sputum, stomach contents and excreta of patients belonging to his wards. Special examinations of blood, aspirated fluids, etc., are performed by either senior or junior, as occasion arises. The schedule of the middle staff provides for a pathological service during which period the interne assigned makes histological examination of all tissues obtained from the wards, operating rooms and autopsies. An cxterneship in bacteriology has been recently established for the routine bacteriological examination of post mortem material. Although extensive additions to the equipment of the bacteriological department have been recently made, the facilities are yet inadequate and among the improvements in contemplation are the installment of much more needed...
